character can't be developed in ease and quiet; only through experience of trial and suffering can the soul be strengthened.

One fine day a small boy saw a caterpillar transforming itself into a butterfly; but what he noticed that the larva was trying and struggling hard to come out of its shell. The generous boy thought to help; ran into his room, grabbed a pair of scissors and cut open the shell; the larva was free but it was unprepared for life; that struggle of coming out from shell was nature's mechanism to redistribute the body weight to the wings, which the boy disrupted.

Soul is strengthened when success is measured in quality and not quantity (money) where self is in coordination with the society; where one's content that what they seek to achieve is based on righteousness.

Shakyamuni Buddha was born a prince of a wealthy state; had all the luxuries of life, destined to be king in future; yet unhappy with all the glory around he took on his own journey of rediscovering self; practicing penance realizing that there has to be a middle path, sought his own version of enlightenment 'NIRVANA' and became BUDDHA.

I wonder but what exactly does soul mean? Is it some scientific concept with a pre-determined definition or a abstract view which differs from people to circumstances. Soul is actually the voice of inner self that tells and guides the person. Soul depicts the highest level of human where his mind and body are in tandem and he is well cognizant of what his duties are.

India's Independence struggle formed the soul of the nation that we live in today. From localized revolts to the revolt of 1857; from demanding British support for religious reformation to gaining independence from British; the ideologies that started from opposition to exorbitant levies and ended at demand of fundamental rights, nothing rights: we via these trials and errors, suppressions and sufferings stood to uphold the values that we fought for.

The stable democracies of post colonial world; on the verge of political breakdown, which are these? versus Indian stable democracy respects the character that we had built upon. explain

Character building doesn't stop with independence, for it is an innate nature of humans and it continues to shape and reshape our values, over time.

There are many instances where our near perfect constitution faced backlash. we suffered but rebounded again with our learned lessons.

The emergency of 1975 pointed the loopholes which were rectified in 44th amendment;

the provision of Basic structure doctrine, anti defection law - manifest how we struggled and built upon the Seed of all constitution.

Taking our analysis to human interpersonal level; we know that human beings are a social animal and can't exist in isolation of the society we live in. We grow in society, learn what are these, how do humans struggle through all of these and how does it shape the character about the challenges and arrive at a juncture where we have to decide the ultimate motive of life. People face dilemmas; strong emotions; backlashes about their decisions, and those who are able to tread the path towards the well-being of the society become inspiration for others.

Startup Biosem founder quit his high paying IT job just to work on making user friendly prosthetics for daily chores.

This is how people-by people; humanity gains its value.

In India, there's a tradition that always respect your elders; liberals counter it with the argument; how is respect related with age, as respect is earned why don't you feel its true?? character is earned and not just determined by age. But its rationale is based on the fact that every person has faced challenges; whatever degree they may be; they have survived them, learnt from them and hence are wiser.

People often fear old circumstances in their lives, but in the end of the day when have faced with they tackle them and emerge stronger; that is the base rule of survival of the fittest. e.g. Crime against children

Learning from hardships build compassion and empathy in people. How during 2nd wave of COVID in India, help poured from all corners. People working best in their capacity to arrange for ambulances, mics - because they had strong character; they understood the pain of losing loved ones.

A PAS officer in Chattisgarh, tribal area, converted a fruitcart into an ambulance by covering it with tin and attaching it with a motor bike.

Such people makes the nation stronger.

↑ Idea need linkage.

People who are alleged with corruption are those who escape hardwork to earn their share and thus don't even feel guilty of stealing someone else's hardearned money. They lack the inner development of character; Mahatma Gandhi always believed in the idea that for nation to be strong, individual's inner self should be strong.

But it doesn't mean that one spoiled, character can't be regenerated -

Indian prison system is based on reformative punishment that forces an individual to rediscover themselves.

They try to engage them in manual labour; acquiring skills; access to books and even allowing them to showcase their own creation — poems, books, paintings.

Maharashtra govt brought a reform to provide loan to family of inmates which will be repaid from the installment of the work done by them in the prison. This makes them value their work; work hard for the family and reduce the hurt they would have caused to their victims.

suffering teach men lessons that they don't want others to suffer from.
the story of Mangal the mountain man who cut across the mountain that created barrier between the village and city, due to which his wife died on going to city's hospital in time; by his act he wouldn't have gotten his wife back, but he made sure no one suffer the same plight.

most of our realizations happen when we see failure, suffering in life.

The ideas in this page have been written well. Its directly in sync with the core demand of the topic.

Raja Ram Mohan Roy; was inspired to get sati abolished when he saw his own sister sitting in a pyre of fire.

The devastation, loss of life experienced in both the world wars pushed the world to the modern order where the first step to resolution is negotiation. Every action is directed towards maintenance of world peace.

Is that what the nation of Patel and gandhi stands for; Is that what we are building of our future generations.

We have entered the times where machines have started to learn from their experiences and building upon their wisdom, but we as a society seem like drawing backward in a world of intolerance; disrespect, consumerism where people are ready to sacrifice others take others lives just for their own desires.

what character one develops when faced with contradictions also depends on what values they hold, what environment they live in and that it then decides whether their character development has strengthened their soul or destroyed it.

But there are always Lord Rama for Ravana; there are who counter the wrongs in the society and purify it towards the path of goodness - Malala Yousafzai is a living example of it.

We try to develop the value of morality in children by teaching them subjects like moral sciences; bringing reforms in our education policy by introducing experiential learning, by promoting role models, adopting capacity building measures such as Mission Karmayogi - the essence is to make individuals chose the right path based on their

- Discuss why character building is essential
- Also discuss whether trials & sufferings can only shape positive character or can it also bring out negative traits.
- Discuss whether ease and comfort are of no use & have no role in shaping ones character.
- Discuss how different people react differently to circumstances and what is the role of character & mindset.
- Discuss if the meaning of trials & sufferings varies from person to person.
- Discuss the traits & values required for people to handle the sufferings well which would showcase the strength of their character.
